TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Virginia Tech, Blacksburg, VA, United States (Aug. 2023–Present)

Instructor of Record

- HTM 4454 — Hospitality Revenue Management, Fall 2026 (in progress), in person
    - Teach revenue management as a sequence of lodging decisions involving demand, pricing, inventory, and distribution
    - Build each module around hands-on analyses of industry data, covering performance measurement, forecasting, pricing, inventory, displacement, and channel decisions
    - Use STR benchmarking reports and case discussions so students practice interpreting performance and justifying revenue-management decisions
- HTM 4484 — International Tourism, Spring 2026, in person
    - Designed and taught a data-driven curriculum covering international tourism statistics, origin-destination flows, and destination competitiveness
    - Led hands-on lab sessions in which students retrieved data from international tourism databases, analyzed it, and created visualizations
    - Guided student teams through a data-informed destination analysis and final presentation

- Received ratings above college and department means on all seven core course and instructor items; overall teaching effectiveness was 5.60/6.00 (college: 5.25; department: 5.14), with a 94% response rate

Guest Lecturer

- HTM 3524 — Lodging Management, "Technology in Hotel Operations," Fall 2024–Fall 2026, in person
  - Invited for five consecutive semesters
  - Use live demonstrations of generative AI tools and AI-assisted data analysis and visualization to examine applications in hotel operations and the guest experience

Graduate Teaching Assistant

- Supported course development, instructional materials, and assessment in Hospitality Revenue Management (HTM 4454), Hospitality Market Data Analysis (HTM 4514), Lodging Management (HTM 3524), Event Management (HTM 3424), and Wedding Planning and Management (HTM 3984)

Student Mentoring and Advising

- Mentored one master's student on a systematic review, from search procedures and inclusion criteria through research design
- Guided undergraduate teams in analyzing STR industry data and presenting their findings (HTM 4514)

Courses prepared to teach: International Tourism; Hospitality Revenue Management; Hospitality Data Analytics; Tourism Economics; Research Methods in Hospitality and Tourism

INDUSTRY AND PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Licensed Tourist Guide (Korea Tourism Organization), Seoul, South Korea (Nov. 2021–Jul. 2023)

- Guided inbound international visitors across Korea as a nationally licensed tour guide, delivering historical and cultural interpretation of major destinations in English and Indonesian
- Coordinated itineraries with hotels, restaurants, and attractions; managed visitor expectations and service recovery for individual travelers and groups

Samsung Electronics, Device Solutions Division, Memory Strategic Marketing Team, Hwaseong, South Korea (Jan. 2015–Oct. 2021)

Engineer, Application Engineering Team (2020–2021)

- Led technical marketing for global data-center customers, including Microsoft, Amazon, and Google, analyzing server workloads and performance data to position new DRAM technologies for infrastructure needs
- Translated large-scale performance and reliability data into evidence used in product-adoption decisions and presented findings to engineering and purchasing teams

Manager, Product Planning Team (2015–2019)

- Developed market analyses for multi-year product roadmaps, including DDR5 and HBM, translating industry forecasts and customer requirements into product strategy
- Led joint validation programs with Intel and AMD, coordinating technical and commercial decisions across firms to support the introduction of new memory standards
